Runnymede Healthcare Centre to expand

Runnymede Healthcare Centre will receive an injection of $6.27 million in operational funding, which will enable the hospital to open two additional patient care units, the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care announced earlier this month.

The additional units will bring the facility's capacity to 200 beds.

The additional funding will help provide better care and services to the local community, according to York South-Weston MPP Laura Albanese. The hospital will "be better equipped to offer the specialized treatment and care they are known for," she said.

The hospital's redevelopment project has enabled the hospital to more than double its capacity from 95 to 200 beds while expanding programs and services.
